

The “Librarian in the Classroom” Program™

WHAT IS IT?

The LIC program provides the faculty with additional support for their curricular needs. Qualified reference librarians are available to teach research skills, either at a general level or on specialized legal topics, to classes or seminar groups. In addition, library staff can provide tours of the library for individual classes.

HOW DO I REQUEST A LIBRARIAN?

- Contact your library liaison or the Head of Reference at least 2 weeks prior to the class.
- Please provide as much detail as possible regarding the content to be covered in the class.
- If relevant, provide topics assigned for student papers or a copy of the course syllabus.

Examples of Classes in Which Library Staff Have Recently Participated

Communications Law	Public Policy & The Law
International Business Transactions	Corporations Law
Comparative Law Seminar	Administrative Law

In addition to lecturing, the librarian will usually provide the students and faculty with handouts and/or access to PowerPoint slideshows, bibliographies, and other materials produced in connection with the presentation. If you have any questions related to this program please contact a reference librarian in the 2nd floor Reference Room.
