In Memoriam

Judge Kathryn J. DuFour
1910–2005

Although she lived somewhat far away, and we did not see her as often as we would have wished, Kathryn DuFour kept in contact with us, corresponding from time to time. We relished her annual Christmas card message, and enjoyed receiving the occasional package from Florida in which we would find some new memento about her career to add to the library display cases.

In those two display cases Kathryn’s life is chronicled in words and pictures, from Hollywood starlet to Maryland Circuit Court Judge. Students look upon these mementos with great interest, especially the pictures of Kathryn in her judicial robes, and a special photo of her visiting with Mother Teresa. Many also are rightfully impressed by a simple letter written to Kathryn from Justice Sandra Day O’Connor, acknowledging that Kathryn “helped pave the way” for the first woman Justice on the United States Supreme Court.

My first encounter with Kathryn actually was not with her personally, but with her beautiful portrait. It arrived one day soon after it was announced that the library would be named in her honor. The portrait would eventually occupy the most prominent spot in the new library – the entry wall.

I must admit that waiting for the building to be completed was very tedious. I do not know how many times we all put on hardhats and carefully tiptoed around the newly poured cement and the iron framework to see how the project was coming along, encountering dust, dirt and debris along the way. Finally after 18 months, the new building was completed and we moved in. A short time later we had grand dedication. It was quite a celebration. Kathryn was very much at the center. After remarks by several librarian luminaries, she cut a bright yellow ribbon, officially opening the facility. Later that evening she was the guest of honor at the first and only formal dinner ever held in the library. It was a very special evening, and she seemed to thoroughly enjoy herself. None of us who took part in that special day will ever forget the event, or Kathryn’s role in it.

Kathryn DuFour was a great friend of The Catholic University of America and the Columbus School of Law. All of us on the staff are very proud to work in a library that bears her name. We all miss the warmth of her friendship and her many kindnesses.

Appendix — 2002-2005 Department of Media Services Statistics ......................................................27
I. INTRODUCTORY SUMMARY

The Reference Department staff of Yvette Brown, Steve Young and Pat Petit enjoyed a very productive year, fielding 750 questions of a substantial nature from faculty and staff. “Patron walk-ins” also kept them busy. During summer and fall Pat Petit supervised the completion of the second edition of the The Catholic Dimension of Legal Studies: The Catholic University Law School Bibliography. Many staff members participated by contributing book annotations. In addition to legal research and bibliography responsibilities, the staff also worked on research guides and weeded the reference collection extensively.

The Circulation Department continued to eagerly respond to faculty and student requests, circulating 10,089 items, about the same number as last year. During summer 2004, the staff reshelved the law journal collection after a reclassification project undertaken by the Technical Services staff was completed. This project resulted in providing expansion space for the journals in addition to correcting early cataloging errors. Department Head, Frances Brillantine, also followed up on the 2004 LibQual survey with a detailed analysis and suggestions for improvements in the library.

During the 2005 academic year the Technical Services Department undertook many projects from reclassification and re-labeling of journals to redesign of the government document’s web page. The Serials unit introduced an Internet-based binding system and the Cataloging and Acquisitions units transitioned to new OCLC off-line editing software. In addition, during early fall the department purchased and installed a new Innopac server on which to run the upgraded Millennium software. The staff also updated the collection development manual.

Xin Wang, Computer Services Librarian, ensured that all library computers were operating at peak efficiency throughout the year. In early fall he moved back into a newly redecorated and enlarged office, which included additional space for a rack of file servers. He purchased 20 new computers for the computer labs and library staff. He added several new large capacity printers and took delivery on a multi-drive fileserver on which will run the library’s Internet web pages.

Media Services Director, Greg Stack and assistant, David Luce, oversaw an extremely busy year of fulfilling requests for help with media in the classroom and technology support during special events. Although these requests were his first priority, Stack also supervised the installation of new technology in four classrooms during both semesters.
II. MILESTONES 2004 – 2005

∞ Added 3,535 new titles to the online catalog, which now includes some 124,500 unique items;

∞ Added 5,621 volumes; withdrew 3,650 resulting in hard copy count at 202,959 volumes;

∞ Added 2,851 microfiche volume equivalents to the collection, which now includes a total of 198,980 microfiche volume equivalents;

∞ Reported that combined hard copy and microfiche volume equivalent count in the law library is now 401,939 volumes;

∞ Maintained 5,370 active serial titles;

∞ Received approximately 15% of all materials published through the Federal Depository System;

∞ Logged in more than 750 faculty and student requests of a substantial nature for reference and research assistance;

∞ Circulated more 10,089 books and reserve items to students and faculty;

∞ Borrowed 694 volumes and copies of journal articles for faculty and students between May 1, 2004 and April 30, 2005;

∞ Lent 898 volumes and copies of articles to other institutions between May 1, 2004 and April 30, 2005;

∞ Serviced 1,150 requests for classroom media equipment;

∞ Provided Media Department support for 86 special events ranging from an afternoon lecture to a conference of several days;

∞ Upgraded the library’s web page.
III. SERVICES

A. Public Services

1. Reference Staffing

All reference staff positions remained filled during academic year 2004-2005, with three full-time librarians and six part-time (evenings/weekends) librarians dividing the library’s many hours of reference services among them. One part-time staff member reduced her hours during the winter, and new part-time librarian, Casandra Harper, joined the staff to cover the remaining reference hours.

2. Reference and Research

The reference staff continues to provide research assistance to faculty through its library liaison program. During academic year 2004-2005 the pairing of faculty and staff seemed to work satisfactorily. Faculty members continue to appreciate the liaison arrangement and the librarians assigned to them. In addition to helping faculty, each reference librarian has been assigned to work with one or more foreign visitors this year. The visitors include Fulbright scholars, LLM candidates and foreign visitors performing comparative legal research in the library at the invitation of the law school.

The reference staff received approximately 750 faculty and student requests for reference assistance of a substantial nature. As in the past, some were quick projects; others more complicated and time consuming. Among the topics researched were the following:

- Use of Dandruff as Evidence
- New Reproductive Technologies
- Civil Commitment in Renaissance England
- UK Parliamentary Oversight of M15
- Military’s Don’t Ask Don’t Tell Policy
- Location, Hierarchy and Demographics of Chaldean Catholic Church in the U.S.
- Sunset Provisions in Patriot Act
- Same-Sex Couples and Marriage
- Law Schools in Angola
- Star Trek Klingon Come-of-Age Ceremony
- Discrimination Based on Sexual Preference
- Literature Search on Enforcement of Foreign Judgments in the U.S.

3. Circulation Staffing

During academic year 2004-2005 Library Student Felicia Maynard replaced recently graduated law student Richard Mazzio who had served as senior circulation counter attendant for four years. Ms. Maynard performed admirably well, but recently graduated for the School of Library and Information Science. Once again the staff will need to find a new senior student assistant.
4. Circulation Activity

During academic year 2004-2005 the Circulation staff circulated some 10,089 items within the law school community. The interlibrary loan activity for the year included borrowing 694 items for faculty and students, and lending 898 items to other law schools and law firms in Washington, D.C. and across the United States.

Compact Shelving Project

Two summers ago the Circulation Department oversaw the installation of compact shelving on the fourth floor of the library, which added growth space for 21,000 more volumes. The system, which incorporates numerous electronic sensor devices, is also connected to the law school’s wireless network, which permits vendor (Spacesaver) technicians to monitor the system’s operation over the Internet. The PowerLink connection permits Spacesaver engineers to check the system’s operation, reset electronic controls and generally collect and view use statistics. During the year there have been several PowerLink alerts, resulting in a technician making a necessary fix remotely or on site. The monitoring system works very well, and alerts come immediately to the Circulation Librarian by e-mail as soon as the system detects a problem.

Responses to the 2004 LibQual Library Survey

During March 2004 the library conducted a library service quality survey (LibQual). LibQual was part of an effort led by the Association of Research Libraries to help individual libraries measure the quality of library service and identify best library practices. In response to the results of the survey, the library made several upgrades to equipment, including all new copiers, automated thermostat control of heating and cooling in open areas, several new printers, and new lab computers.

Reclassifying and Reshelving of Law Journals

During summer 2004 the Circulation staff and the Technical Services staff joined hands to make some long overdue changes to the call numbers on several hundred law periodicals. The resulting changes made a major re-shelving job necessary. The work was carried out swiftly and quietly with nary a patron complaint. An important result of the reclassification effort was the expansion of the shelving space made possible by reducing unneeded space between sets of legal materials shelved near the law journals. Now there is plenty of space for periodical expansion.

5. Public Services Area Upgrades

During the preceding year Circulation staff computer stations were replaced with state-of-the art equipment, including LCD monitors. LCD flat panel monitors were also installed at all computer stations in the main entry hall. An additional “student laptop” printer was added to the main floor of the library, and two new student Westlaw printers were installed on the main floor as well.

6. New Electronic Databases

Two new electronic databases have been added to the library’s menu of online services. These included CIS’s Congressional Serial Set and the Index to Legal Periodicals 1918 to 1980. Both sets permit extensive historical research online. The CIS service, when complete in December 2005, will permit key word searching through the thousands of congressional documents bound in the Serial Set (and heretofore not easily searchable). The inclusion of the missing period of 1918 to 1980 will make searching of the Index to Legal Periodicals much easier and more thorough.

7. Publications

The Catholic Dimension of Legal Studies:

The Catholic University Law School Bibliography

Under the guiding hand of Pat Petit the library staff once again created a fine work product with the publication of the second edition of The Catholic Dimension of Legal Studies: The Catholic University Law School Bibliography. The bibliography was printed in fall 2004 at the law school. It is gratifying to note that many library staff participated in reviewing sources and preparing annotations for the items. The bibliography, now at 600 entries on 166 pages, was sent to all law school deans and library directors. The work product can also be found at the libraries web page at http://lib.law.cua.edu/Home/libpubs/libpubs.htm#cathbib.

The Public Services Department continues to prepare library guides for using online web services and for legal subject areas. The guides can be found in display units throughout the library, reproduced in library publications, and posted on the library’s web page.

After developing a web page template for foreign country guides, Steve Young has developed several new country guides for the web page: Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Mexico, and the UK.

Librarians also prepare articles, bibliographies and book chapters for professional publications. These items are included near the end of the Annual Report under their individual librarian names.

8. Teaching

Associate Director Pat Petit taught a section of Advanced Legal Research and Writing with Assistant Dean Georgia Niedzielsko during the fall semester and Advanced Legal Research during the spring. He also taught Hollywood Looks at the Law and Lawyers with Professor Harvey Zuckman. Reference librarians Yvette Brown and Steve Young also taught special segments of the research classes and substantive law courses taught by a variety of faculty.
Director Steve Margeton taught Advanced Legal Research during fall 2004 and American Legal Research in the American Law Program at the Jagiellonian University in Cracow Poland in October 2004.

B. Technical Services

1. Technical Services Staffing

The major change in staffing in the Technical Services Department was the arrival of Xiuping Yang, Serials Assistant, and Shyamalika Ghoshal replacing GLP Erin Haggerty.

2. Technical Services Activity

- Completed reclassification and relabeling of legal journals collection (K1-K30).
- Transitioned to new OCLC off-line editing software (Connexion Client).
- Introduced new Internet-based binding automation system (ABLEweb).
- Completed retrospective cataloging of 115 titles in the Corporate Counsel’s Primer series (Business Laws, Inc.) and began work on retrospective analytical cataloging of the Corporate Practice Portfolios series (BNA).
- Redesigned the Library’s Depository program webpage.
- Installed new Library Catalog system hardware and software.
- Upgraded of computer used with Minolta 6000 digital reader/scanner (for digital scanning of microform images).
- Added several new subscriptions of note: Religion Case Reporter, Retrospective Index to Legal Periodicals (1918-1983) and print subscription to Communications Daily.
- Conducted a comprehensive review of law review subscriptions in print, microform and electronic formats.
- Coordinated zero-based review of Federal Depository Library Program item selections with Mullen Library.

3. Serials

The library receives some 5,370 serial subscriptions. Overall the library ranked 59th in number of serial subscriptions received in last falls ABA survey. Serials include journals, newsletters, yearbooks, court reports, loose-leaf services, newspapers and government serial titles received through the Federal Depository Program.

4. Title and Volume Count

Currently the library’s collection includes some 124,500 titles. The hardcopy title count is 47,355. The microfiche and microfilm title count is 75,574. CD ROM, audio and video titles now total 1,571 pieces. The total volume count stands at 401,939 items. During the past year the staff selectively weeded the collection of little used materials.
5. Microforms

Although the library has not purchased any major new sets of microfiche materials during the previous year, the staff continues to add cataloging records to improve access to existing microform collections. 1,773 microfiche records were added during the year with the majority of the cataloged titles coming from the Government Printing Office.

6. Collection Development

The Staff continues to faithfully review all of the slips from its four slip and approval plans: Hein, Blackwell North America, Yankee Book Peddler and Harrassowitz. New selection procedures appear to be working very efficiently. Under the new plan Steve Margeton sees the slips first and removes the foreign law material items before sending the remaining slips out to the librarians generally. The foreign law slips are reviewed separately by Steve Young and Steve Margeton.

In addition to revising how book slips are routed, the Department Heads and the Director also made additions and corrections to the Collection Development Manual. These changes generally involved procedures for adding “basic” hornbooks and similar titles purchased for the reserve shelf. Procedures for selecting foreign law materials were also finalized.

C. Special Collections Reading Room

The library staff redesigned the web page for the Special Collections Reading Room, which lists the main collections and provides information when and where they can be viewed, http://lib.law.cua.edu/home/libinfo/speccol.htm.

D. Automation Services

1. Staffing

Xin Wang, Computer Services Librarian, performed regular maintenance on more than 106 library computers and 15 printers throughout the year. He helped redesign the library web page, upgraded staff and student computer software, and performed a variety of other computer related tasks. After completing four and a half of services, Xin has left the law library to take a position in the federal government. The staff is truly sorry to see him leave, but has already made plans to advertise for his replacement. Interviewing will take place throughout summer 2005.

2. Hardware and Software

New equipment and software purchases include a second HP8000 series printer for the library’s Computer Lab for students who use laptops and print over the network. A smaller laptop printer was introduced on the main floor as well. Individual PCs were replaced as the need became apparent. LCD monitors were installed in the circulation area and at patron stations in the main corridor of the library. The library completed its second successful year of utilizing wireless network equipment on the 2nd and 4th floors. For the time being, the west side of the library’s 3rd floor remains a laptop-free zone in order to accommodate students who really want a quiet space free of laptops. Again as in the past, individual student PCs were configured for wireless connection entirely through the efforts of the law school’s Computer Services Department.

The library continues to operate two in-house file servers. One server is configured for staff use as a “within library” intranet server. A second server is used for library web page (and Internet) development. A larger server was purchased during the spring 2005 in order to migrate both intranet and web data to a higher grade machine with replaceable mirror image drives for both security and safety. The new server is in place and work on implementing the plan is anticipated to begin during the fall 2005.

3. Computer Labs

The three computer labs have had relatively few problems during the academic year. Seventeen computers were replaced in the large lab over the summer 2004 with new machines. In addition, seven computers in the small lab were replaced in June 2005.

4. Web Access

The library’s web page was modestly redesigned in spring 2005. New content was added to several secondary pages and the home page was tweaked a bit. Its successful upgrade is due chiefly to the hard work of Mary Strouse, Frances Brillantine, Steve Young and Xin Wang. The homepage for the library is http://lib.law.cua.edu/.

E. Media Services

1. Staffing

Greg Stack, Director of Media Services, and David Luce, audiovisual coordinator, continue as the only full time staff in Media Services. Even with limited staff the Department managed to service more than 1,150 requests for classroom media equipment, as well as 86 special events. Individual setup statistics for the Department can be found in the Appendix I.

2. Major Equipment Installations

During summer and fall 2004 Greg Stack worked with Hoppmann Audio Visual service to devise a plan to upgrade classrooms 204, 205, 208 and 303. These four classrooms presented challenges because 204 and 205 had two special requirements, i.e., a small podium footprint and the ability to combine both classrooms into an auditorium. A special feature of the new podiums is the introduction of new whiteboard technology called Sympodium.\footnote{The Sympodium permits the faculty to project class whiteboard work onto a screen using an LCD projection system. Additionally, the Sympodium software can be used to annotate PowerPoint Slides or other presentations, which can be saved for future use.} The work in 204/205 also required the replacement of the projection screens and special positioning of the LCD projectors to ensure maximum visibility from back rows of the classroom. Classroom 208, which employed the same small footprint podium, is a much smaller classroom that required a different set of plans. Classroom 303, while the same size as room 208, employs no podium at all, but has the presentation equipment built into the wall. Thus, extensive planning and a lengthy installation schedule had to be endured for much of the year. After the completion of the work, Stack began a series of training sessions for faculty who are scheduled to teach in these “technology rich” class settings this fall.

IV. GIFTS AND DONATIONS

During the academic year 2004-2005 the library received a number of donations for the collection. Among gifts were several important additions to the law school archive.

V. EQUIPMENT ADDED and REPAIRED

- 3 17” LCD monitors for Circulation Staff
- 1 HP 8000 for fourth floor laptop use
- 4 Pentium IV computers for staff Pat, Frances, Dawn, Christine
- Replacement computer for Microfiche Reader/Printer/Scanner (Permits downloading of microfiche information to CD ROM)
- Laptop computer for Media Services’ classroom Use
- Three fully-equipped smart podiums for classrooms 204, 205 and 208
- Built-in technology systems for classroom presentation in classroom 303
- Additional technology to operate presentation systems and sound systems in classrooms 204, 205, 208 and 303.
- Built-in LCD projectors for classrooms 204, 205, 208 and 303.
- Sent another 30 library chairs back to the factory for repair
- 25 Pentium IV computers for large and small lab
